25X1A 4. The two-week training program for selected [redacted] personnel was successfully completed 8 December. The sessions at [redacted] installation apparently accomplished [redacted] 25X1A objective to give the trainees a sense of recognition and involvement, and to further develop their potential. [redacted] wants to 25X1A run another course of this kind, probably in February.

1. [REDACTED] OCS/TO, called [REDACTED] to inform STATINTL her that Montgomery College is considering giving credit for computer courses taken internally to some Agency employees who are students at MC. A letter then goes to the College from the Registrar, OTR, giving the student's identification information and the course description. A copy is sent to the student, asking him/her to notify OTR of the College's action.

Reference the special Mongolian training at the University of Leeds, we had earlier received a "negative but keep us posted" reply from FE; we checked again with the Chief of Support, SB, who said he took the proposal up with [redacted] Chief, SB. 4 - 8 December 1972

1. JCS-DIA Orientation

The two-day JCS-DIA Orientation concluded on the afternoon of 6 December with a dynamic, humorous, and most effective presentation by Gen. Walters. This was followed by an equally interesting and pertinent question period.

Other outstanding speakers included Carl Duckett, [redacted]
Bruce Clarke, and [redacted]

The critiques reveal that as a whole, the program was considered to be well balanced, well organized, and effectively administered.

An additional feature this time was a tour of the Cuban Missile Crisis exhibit conducted by [redacted]

STATINTL

The group was rather subdued in the sense that they did not ask as many questions as usual. This, however, did not seem to reflect any lack of interest.

Two General Officers were present: Maj. Gen. Arthur Adams, USMC, Deputy Chief of Staff, CINCLANT and Maj. Gen. Edward A. McGough, USAF, Deputy Commandant, ICAF. Both told [redacted] they thought the program was well organized and very worthwhile.

2. AIS Questionnaire for Senior School Graduates

About one-third of the 20 AIS graduates who subsequently attended Senior Schools have replied to the SIWA Questionnaire sent them last week. This survey is a response to a query from the DDS as to the relative value of the AIS and a special, three-day orientation course given each June as preparation for Agency personnel going on to senior schools.

All seven graduates who have replied to date indicate that they found the AIS of "substantial" use as preparation for their particular senior school. Those who attended both the three-week AIS and the three-day orientation also chose the former as the one they would select if they could attend only one. Most other student responses probably will arrive in the next week or so. We will make a fuller report at that time.

3. Midcareer Course

The class went after "Management Science" with good humor, enthusiasm, and skepticism. A preliminary judgement is that the students seem to sense that one-week is not the optimum length for this segment.

4. BNDD Requests Intelligence Readings

STATINTL
[redacted] called to ask for readings dealing with the intelligence process for Robert Goe, new deputy to the Assistant Director for Strategic Intelligence in BNDD. Mr. Goe, an experienced narcotics agent and inspector, has no intelligence background, but [redacted] says he is a very sharp individual. In transmitting two publications on the intelligence process to [redacted] STATINTL we pointed out that our briefing officers could provide an updating and fill-in on intelligence topics. A similar request was received from [redacted]

5. NPIC Shows Interest in USSR Geography Course

STATINTL
STATINTL
STATINTL
[redacted] training officer of NPIC, called on Tuesday to inquire whether SIWA would be able to put on a USSR geography course for 16 NPIC professionals. [redacted] has investigated the costs of having these professionals take regular university courses, and also of having a local university put the course on under contract, but he found costs to be high, and problems of clearance were difficult. Since SIWA abandoned its offering the USSR Geography course, Henry [redacted] the course instructor, has not been keeping current. However, it might be possible for him to assemble a course package, utilizing experts from the DDI area, which would meet NPIC needs and would provide considerably more value than an unclassified course offered at local universities.

7. SIWA Conference

SIWA followed up on its two days at [redacted] with an all-day report from the conference group leaders on 8 December. The subjects covered were AIS/MC, cross-cultural and area studies, skills courses, and IWA. These were three days well spent.
